EASTMAN KODAK
RESIDUAL THIOSULFATE ANALYSIS

Medrex
P.O> Box 640 / Route 9W
Attn: Jerry O'Toole
Port Ewen NY 12466

Email: jotoole@medrexltd.com

Your sample film strips have been tested for archival quality (residual thiosulfate concentration). They were tested according to the methylene blue method described by the American National Standards Institute.

Concentrations of less than (<) 1.4 ug (micrograms)/cm² indicate archival quality, and greater than (>) 1.4 ug/cm² indicate non-archival quality. ISO 18901:2002 states that a methylene blue test must be taken within two weeks of the processing date.

Actual test readings are provided below as well as "pass/fail" check marks.

PROCESSOR	PROCESS DATE	Methylene Blue Test Date	ACTUAL CONCENTRATION	MEETS ANSI STANDARD (<)1.4 UG/cm ²	DOES NOT MEET ANSI STANDARD (>) 1.4 UG/cm ²
Allen	6/16/08	6/19/08	.3	X
Oscar	6/16/08	6/19/08	.8	X

ISO 18901:2002 specifies that properly processed and stored silver-gelatin microfilms on polyester base have a Life Expectance (LE) of 500 years. ISO 18901:2002 specifies the maximum permissible thiosulfate ion levels that may be present in films intended to record records having permanent value. This maximum value is 0.014 g/m². This equates to the typically reported value of 1.4 ug/cm²

For additional information on archival storage conditions, you may wish to ask your Kodak representative for a copy of Kodak Pamphlet D-31, "Storage and Preservation of Microfilms".
